The staff of the 1990 Tontoquonian extends its most sincere appreciation to Mr. George Palmer, whose dedication and clear-minded support inspired us all to look past the disagreement and long hours of hard work and see the ultimate satisfaction in the creative intent. Without him, this yearbook would never have happened.

A Message From The Editors

12:01 a.m. - February 6, 1990 - Tuesday

We're finally done, and we're all very tired. Who ever would have thought that this undertaking, which began with a summer yearbook camp in Rhode Island last July, will be over at the end of this paragraph? The ads are done, we've thanked Mr. Palmer. Done . . .

Let us emphasize, though, that what makes this accomplishment so special to the editors and staff of the Tontoquonian, is that it is meant to be shared with anyone who is a part of, or became involved with, the Class of 1990. This yearbook is our little piece of the future to keep as we design this new decade. The possibilities that lie ahead for us to explore after graduation are endless. Good Luck and thanks to everyone who shared in our senior experience.

We are going home now . . .

Enjoy . . .

THE EDITORS,
Paula, Patrice and Brian.
